(Warm, modern, heartfelt, celebration-focused)

Good evening, everyone. Thank you for being here tonight as we gather to celebrate the love, commitment, and beautiful journey that has brought Lilley and Matthew to this moment.

As a parent, watching your child grow into the person they are today is one of life's greatest privileges. You witness their first steps, their first heartbreak, their triumphs, their challenges — and somewhere along the way, you realize they've become someone strong, kind, capable, and ready to build a life of their own. Tonight is a moment that honors that journey.

Lilley has always been someone who roots for the underdog— someone whose heart shows in the way they treat others, whose character shows in the choices they make, and whose joy shows in the life they've built. Seeing them step into this next chapter feels both surreal and deeply right.

And then came Matthew — a person who didn't just fit into our family, but added to it. Someone who loves our child with sincerity, steadiness, and joy. Someone who brings out the best in them. Someone who feels like home.

One moment that captures their connection is when the babies were born— a moment that made us smile, made us proud, and made us think, “Yes. This is love. This is partnership. This is the person meant to walk beside them.”

Tonight isn't just about tomorrow's ceremony — it's about honoring the foundation they've already built. The laughter, the growth, the challenges they've overcome together, and the future they're choosing with intention and love.

To our families and friends: thank you for being part of their story. Your support, your guidance, your presence — it all matters. It all shapes the love we're celebrating tonight.

My dedication to you both is this:

May your marriage be a place of safety and adventure.

May you continue to choose each other with kindness.

May you build a home filled with laughter, respect, and magic.

And may you always remember that love is not just a feeling — it's a daily act of devotion.

So tonight, we raise a glass to Lil and Matt — to the love that brought you here, the partnership that sustains you, and the future that awaits you.

We love you both.

And we're so proud of you.
